

2012 NATIONAL QUILT DAY

Saturday, March 17 at the Kenosha Public Museum

Southport Quilters Guild Show

March 3-25, 2012

Quilts by members of the Southport Quilters Guild will be on display in DaimlerChrysler Hall at the Kenosha Public Museum from March 3-25. This year's theme is "Stars: Skies the Limit." This year's show also features another quilt challenge. Guild members are challenged to create a small quilt based on a paint chip. Vote for your favorite! On March 17th, "National Quilt Day," members of the Southport Quilters Guild demonstrate quilting on the Mezzanine and in the Artists Studio and provide hands-on quilting activities for kids.

NATIONAL QUILT DAY PRESENTATION

Saturday, March 17 at 2 pm

"But I Still Love You"

PRESENTED BY CHRIS LYNN KIRSCH

In this lighthearted talk, Chris shares stories about her collection of antique quilts while wearing a Civil War-era hoop skirt she made. Although these quilts are not museum quality, and some are quite worn, they each have their own story. Chris presents these quilts with as much historical information as possible, a love for each one and a bit of humor. The title reflects her feeling that even though they are not perfect, she still loves and values them.

FREE tickets available the day of the presentation beginning at 9 am.

Seating is limited and unreserved.

Chris Lynn Kirsch is a quilter extraordinaire who stitches magic from her log home deep in the woods of southeastern Wisconsin. Chris' love of quilting is matched only by her knowledge of the craft, which she enthusiastically passes along in her classes, trips, books and blog.
